Reform Act impacts Bay schools more than student population

BY DENA BISNETTE
State mandates relating to the Education Reform Act of 1982 are apparently contributing more to an overcrowding problem in the Bay St. Louis-Waveland schools than an increasing school population.

Superintendent of Education Roger Oge told the board Monday that a survey of student population and general population figures had shown that the school populations have not been growing as quickly as the populations of Bay St. Louis, Waveland or Hancock County.

He said the school population has remained "comparatively stable."

The main problem appears to be that the school district has too many children per classroom, the superintendent added.

"Much of our need for extra space has to do with the Mississippi Educational Reform Act, and even if we didn't have that, we still need to reduce our pupil-teacher ratio," he said.

The population of the county, according to Mississippi Community Data, was 17,000 in 1970, 24,000 in 1980 and between 26,000 and 29,000 in 1984.

The Bay St. Louis population was 6,752 in 1970, 7,850 in 1980 and 9,218 in 1984. A slight drop in minority population was indicated.

Waveland's population may not directly match that of the Waveland section of the school district because part of the city is in the Hancock County School District, Oge said.

The population of Waveland was 3,106 in 1970, 4,186 in 1980 and 4,966 in 1984.

The number of students attending Bay Senior High during the 1973-74 school year totaled 425, then increased to 594 for 1981-82, the year the ninth grade became part of the senior high rather than junior high.

The high school population is now 608.

The junior high school campus provided facilities for 514 students in 1973-74, 515 in 1981-82, and 451 now.

The North Bay Elementary School population was 672 in 1973-74 and is 532 now, not including 168 fifth graders at St. Rose Fifth Grade Center, which is a new center that opened at the beginning of this school term.

The Waveland Elementary School population was 280 in 1973-74 and is 323 in 1985-87.

Total student population for the district was 1,881 in 1973-74 and is presently 2,097 including kindergarten students.

Kindergarten students have not been included in student population figures before, because the current school year is the first time public kindergartens have existed in Mississippi.

Oge said he is still working on a report regarding the district's need for facilities, which is expected to be completed by the end of January.

The population report will be used in deciding the scope of the district's proposed long-range building program and in planning curriculum, the superintendent said.

He added that he is continuing to try to find other variables that might impact our schools in the future.

In other business, the board:

—Approved spending $5,000 to buy a collection of kindergarten instructional materials at the recommendation of Oge, District Reading Specialist Sue Souther and six kindergarten teachers.

—Agreed to delay a decision on the purchase of a new telephone system for the district until January while more information is obtained.

—Authorized Assistant Superintendent of Education Robert Magee to apply for federal funding for students who live in federally subsidized housing or whose parents work on federal installations; and —Approved an agreement with Canon Engineering for air conditioning and heating North Bay Elementary School at a fee of seven percent of the cost of the project, which is expected to cost about $75,000.

County declares emergency for road erosion repair

BY DENA BISNETTE
The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has declared another emergency on Beach Road.

This time, just like the last emergency several months ago, the problem is erosion under the road.

Board Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner said Monday that two sections of seawall railing near the north end of the wall in Cedar Point collapsed some time ago, apparently allowing the eroding of about six feet of material from under the road.

"The hole only goes for about six feet now, but it's taking a beating from the high tides we've had. If we don't do something the road will sink," Ladner said.

Declaring an emergency will keep the board from having to wait 30 days required by bidding procedures. In addition, county employees can do the work in this particular case.

In other business, the board:

—Heard a report from District Soil and Water Conservation Director Doug Stephens, who said that Caesar Anna Road, Black Snake Creek Road and Joe Moran Road have been approved as locations for a total of $71,000 in erosion control work to be done with 80 percent grant funds.

—Accepted preliminary plans for a subdivision and a recreation complex at Diamondhead;

—Accepted a plaque from Peter Flagg, Chief of the Long Beach Fire Department, which was presented in appreciation for the county's contributions to the Mississippi Firefighters Memorial Burn Center at Greenville;

—Agreed to purchase parts for two ditching machines;

—Authorized Hancock County Election Commission Secretary Charles Gottschalk to attend a conference in Jackson;

—Agreed to try to obtain riprap left from demolition of the Pine Hills Hotel in Deltale for use in controlling washouts;

—Approved County Engineer Larry Seal's proposal for compliance with a state-mandated posting of load limits on all county bridges;

—Commended Michael Ladner for more than seven years of service as Veteran's Service Officer; and —Approved purchasing a surplus truck for use at McLeod Water Park in Kiln.

The board meets again Jan. 5 at 9 a.m.

Supervisors approve sanctuary

BY DENA BISNETTE

Hancock County has a new bird and game sanctuary.

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously Monday to approve a sanctuary proposed and requested by a group of West Cedar Point residents.

About 12 people attended a 10 a.m. public hearing on the matter and none of them expressed any objections to the proposed boundaries or sanctuary restrictions.

The sanctuary was requested by three West Cedar Point residents who had become concerned about shooting near residences.

The proposed sanctuary is bordered by the Bay St. Louis City Limits along Engman Avenue off Blakemore to Cedar Ridge, along Joe's Bayou Road to Blue Meadow Road and along Blue Meadow Road to Jourdan River.

The adjacent Cedar Point area inside the city limits already falls under a city ordinance prohibiting the use of firearms in a populated area.

No hunting is permitted within the boundaries of a bird and game sanctuary but fishing and crabbing are not restricted.

Justice Department notifies Bay-Waveland school board of voting rights violation

BY DENA BISNETTE
The U.S. Department of Justice has notified the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School Board that a 1976 change in the way board members are selected was never cleared as complying with the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

Board Attorney Lucien Gex read part of a letter from the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division to the board Monday, explaining that the matter can be handled through an application for retroactive clearance or through litigation.

The attorney said that 1976 was the year that the board changed from four appointed trustees and one elected trustee to three appointed trustees and two elected trustees.

The appointments are made by the Bay St. Louis mayor and city council. The elected board members must be from Waveland or the outside territory that was added to the school district's original boundaries.

The district made the change under a state statute that increased the number of elected board members automatically when the student population of the outside territories reached 20 percent of the total student population in the district.

Gex said litigation would be more expensive and would take longer than the application process, although the application process is also "quite a lot of work."

The attorney explained that application for retroactive approval involves submission of an answer to the letter as well as a collection of statistics on school district population, voter population and other topics.

"It's a long, long list, and from past experience with the Justice Department, I've learned that they never accept your first submission and seldom accept your second one, but it's still better than a lawsuit," Gex said.

Gex said he is presently going through a similar situation for the City of Waveland, which has filed a plan for redistricting its wards.

"Every time I send the Justice Department something, they want me to add something else," he explained.

He advised the school board to use school district employees to do some of the research to reduce costs.

The information is mostly of a statistical form and does not have to be collected by an attorney, although an attorney's training is required for final preparation of the application.

A lawsuit on the matter would have to be filed in District of Columbia and could take an undetermined amount of time, the attorney added.

Board Member Cyril Gower questioned Gex regarding whether the problem should be handled by the state since the district was only complying with a state law when the 1976 change was made.

"Don't expect the state to fight this for us. As far as they're concerned, it's strictly a local problem," the attorney said.

Superintendent of Education Roger Oge, who had attended a superintendent's meeting in Jackson Friday, said he had found that the Bay St. Louis-Waveland District is not the only district notified regarding election procedures.

"What they should be looking into is why the whole board is not elected instead of the fact that two are elected," Gex said.

Escapees recaptured

BY DENA BISNETTE
Two Hancock County Jail prisoners who escaped Saturday have been recaptured.

Samuel C. Dimmore, also known as Timothy Garrighan, 22, of Gulfport, was captured Monday morning by deputies from the Harrison County Sheriff's Department, Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson said.

Steven M. Laird, 18, was captured Sunday night by Gulfport police officers.

According to Peterson, the two were housed in the lower part of the jail and escaped at about 6:30 p.m. Saturday after having broken a lock on their cell door sometime earlier.

When trustees came to the cell to bring them their evening meal, the two prisoners fled out the front door. Dimmore, or Garrighan, was being held on grand larceny and burglary charges. Laird was being held for grand larceny of an automobile.

Peterson said both had been charged with jail escape, which carries a potential sentence of five years.

Partial appropriation released to Ammo Plant

WASHINGTON—The U.S. Army Wednesday released almost $60 million to the Army Ammunition Plant at NSTL in Hancock County.

Mississippi's Fifth District Congressman Trent Lott reported the Army has earmarked the money to complete the plant's mobilization upgrade plan.

Completion date for the plan is May, 1988, Lott noted.

The appropriation is authorized in the 1987 Continuing Appropriations Bill in which Congress allocated a total of $130 million for the plant.

Congressional restrictions on the appropriation, however, limit the amount which may be released to $60 until completion of an independent study of the plant's production schedule.

Congress, in the Act, directs the Secretary of the Army to appoint an independent panel of experts on engineering and production to evaluate and validate the Army's plan for full production at the plant.

Mental Health Department to dedicate Learning Center

The Mississippi Department of Mental Health will host dedication ceremonies for a Learning Center in Jackson, Thursday, Dec. 18 at 1:30 p.m.

The dedication of the Learning Center marks a great step forward for mental health services in Mississippi.

Consider two very different possibilities:

In a denim jacket stained with what looks like it was something else before it was mildew, an old man (though he's probably no more than 50) sits on some steps near a busy intersection. He's discussing with no one his previous death by rat poisoning in a local restaurant.

The man is an image of what can happen too often to people with lifelong, serious mental illnesses. His thought disorder scares many people and he is systematically discriminated against by landlords and employers. His repeated hospitalizations do nothing to help him when he does not require the hospital.

In a downward spiral, he is ghettoized by the reactions of people in his society and by his own internalized expectation of defeat.

Contrast this image with "Carl," a slight middle-aged man who is a client of the Learning Center in Jackson. Carl reaches out to shake your hand, expecting the usual reaction: a perfunctory handshake for a client.

He squeezes your hand, gently rubbing the bones together, and then smiles broadly at your reaction. Giving you hand the "wills" reminds you that a perfunctory nod, declassing him for his illness, is not good enough.

Through a new concept in mental health care, there are increasing opportunities in Mississippi to break the ghettoization cycle. Called "psychosocial rehabilitation," it does not so much replace the idea that people with mental illnesses need medical treatment as place medical care in a broader context.

Medical care becomes just one element in the range of services required by long-term illnesses. The broader picture also includes community residences, day treatment, and case management.

The Learning Center in Jackson is a complex of four buildings, each interrelated with the others. Two of the buildings are residences for former patients of Mississippi State Hospital.

An old West Capitol Street mansion serves as a halfway house where former patients may stay for up to six months. The other residence is a small apartment building next door.

The two residences are, in a sense, linked by a third building at the complex. The third structure looks like any small school building built in the 50's or 60's: long, low, and drably linear. What happens inside, however, is far from conventional schooling. Here people are taught functional living skills.

Usually, this is a process of relearning such things as good nutrition, exercise, and clothing habits. Since many major mental illnesses do not appear until early adulthood, many of the tasks people with serious mental illnesses once took for granted must be re-learned. About 100 people come regularly to day treatment classes and other events.

Residents of the halfway house participate in learning sessions with other clients from the Jackson area. When a resident of the halfway house successfully meets certain goals, they may move to the supervised apartment building next to the halfway house.

Staff at the Learning Center keep a supportive eye on the apartments, but they are supervised by former patients.

The supervised apartments represent a step-wise progression with the ultimate goal of placing clients in the least restrictive environment in which they are capable of living. Currently there are 13 residents of the halfway house and 14 people living in the supervised apartments.

Even more important to breaking the cycle of re-hospitalization and downward social mobility is teaching clients to use social services available to them. This involves dealing with a variety of state and federal agencies: Social Security, and the state welfare and health agencies are examples.

The fourth building serves as an entertainment "drop-in" center. Push the pool tables out the way and it becomes an auditorium for films or other events.

Community outreach is another important service provided by the Learning Center. Case managers seek to identify former patients and link them with available services, including, of course, those available at the Learning Center. Case Management now serves about 120 people in the surrounding neighborhood.

Case managers act as brokers of services for residents of the halfway house and supervised apartments, as well as for clients living elsewhere in Jackson. By coordinating health and support services, case managers help improve their client's quality of daily life. Case managers are also a personal contact. By relieving daily stress, case managers pre-empt some of the outside forces that seem to cause some mentally ill people to "decompensate."

Of course, helping prevent psychotic episodes is only one subset of the Learning Center's broad purposes. Providing some former patients with better accommodations, providing supportive social and leisure opportunities, providing service-coordination through case management, all are parts of the long-term treatment objective of the Learning Center. Treatment, here, is matched to the long-term nature of serious mental illnesses.

The Learning Center provides a singular opportunity to break the ghettoization cycle that victimizes people with serious mental illnesses. It is not illness which victimizes people; it is, too often, our social, medical, and emotional responses to mental illness which victimize the ill. The Learning Center provides a way out not only for those who are ill, the Learning Center is also a decent and humane societal response to people with serious illnesses.

Please celebrate the Learning Center by joining us at the dedication ceremonies, 121 Rose Street, (Corner of W. Capitol).

Everyone seems to be talking about the sorry weather we have been having for the past four weeks or so.

Weather forecasters keep reporting rain, fog, more rain, and more fog each day.

I think we have had only two days without rain or fog out of the last 30.

One thing about it, we could be having some of the below zero temperatures like others in the North and even the South have been experiencing.

One thing is for sure, we can talk about the weather, but, we can not do anything about it.

In just a few days Santa will be arriving for many boys and girls in the area.

We know all of the boys and girls—well, most of them—have been real good in recent weeks in preparation for Christmas.

We hope they all will receive their wishes for Christmas.

On last Saturday we noted several political figures working very hard at the Annual Car Wash for the Hancock County Doll and Toy Fund.

We extend our appreciation to everyone who worked so hard to help raise some funds for the Doll and Toy Fund, as more requests than ever have been made for deserving boys and girls.

We do not want to forget the Hancock County trustees who also helped with the car wash.

Thanks to those who had their cars washed and made a donation.

Your efforts will help deserving boys and girls have a Merry Christmas.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

JACKSON—If a proposal drafted last week for introduction in the upcoming session of the Legislature becomes a reality, Mississippi will hold its first convention to write a new constitution in 98 years starting July 29, 1988.

Sen. Howard Dyer, of Greenville, chairman of the Senate Constitution Committee, and a member of Gov. Bill Allain's Constitution Study Commission, said he has the constitutional convention measure ready for the Senate to tackle when it arrives Jan. 6.

Dyer's proposal calls for a 122-delegate constitutional convention to be elected by voters in each of the existing House of Representatives districts in the spring of 1988.

But the calling of the constitutional convention would be made contingent upon an affirmative vote on the proposition in a statewide referendum at the 1987 general election, thereby making it a key issue at the same time the state selects a governor.

The Dyer bill further requires the product of the constitutional convention would have to be submitted to a statewide vote for ratification before it would become effective, unlike the 1890 Constitution.

This, according to the backers of the proposal, would give the people "three shots at it" before the existing state constitution would be replaced and could reduce opposition in the Legislature.

The Dyer bill was handed to Gov. Bill Allain last week for him to consider in drafting his own proposal for a constitutional convention. Allain is believed to have under study several variations for calling a constitutional convention, including one used in Louisiana whereby the governor was allowed to appoint a certain number of delegates to represent racial and economic interests.

Actually, Allain has only recently clarified his position in favor of a constitutional convention after apparently abandoning the position he took as a candidate for governor when he said he favored constitutional revision only by amendment.

Dyer has sounded out some other members of the Senate on the constitutional convention proposal and evidently believes there is a good reservoir of support for the proposal on the Senate side.

One senator pointed out last week that "as long as the people will have the right to vote on their constitution" he could not see any difficulty with the measure passing the Mississippi upper house.

From a historical standpoint, measures proposing a constitutional convention passed the state Senate in both 1934 and 1957, but died in the House.

The key person on the success of a constitutional convention in the 1987 session apparently will be Rep. Charles Capps, Jr. of Cleveland, who heads the House Constitution Committee.

Capps told this column he had been in contact with Sen. Dyer about his proposal and has agreed that any action on a constitutional convention should originate in the Senate. "We will consider it in the House if the bill gets through the Senate," Capps declared.

The Cleveland lawmaker said he has assured Allain's staff that hearings will be held on the constitutional convention measure.

Capps withdrawal of his longtime opposition to gubernatorial succession in the 1986 session was crucial to getting the constitutional amendment on the November ballot and ending the one-term limitation on governors Mississippi has had since 1890.

"I'm not stuck in concrete against a constitutional convention," Capps declared. "Although I do favor the amendment route, I don't want to stand in the way of a constitutional convention if the people want it."

Some lawmakers believe that the lop-sided vote by which five constitutional amendments were ratified on Nov. 4, including gubernatorial succession, sent a message to the Legislature that the people want a total overhaul of the state constitution.

Coming up Friday is the final meeting of Allain's Constitutional Commission to act on its final draft of a proposed new constitution.

While the draft retains some of the provisions of the old constitution, it removes all of the old constitutional sections under which blacks were kept in political and social bondage, and proposes many reforms in the structure of county and state government including the judiciary.

The Dyer proposal would permit members of the Legislature to seek election as convention delegates, a point which has been controversial in some other states where constitutional conventions have been held in recent years.

According to the dates contained in Dyer's bill, the convention would convene on July 29, 1988 and would be required to conclude its work by Dec. 1, 1988.

Delegates would be paid at the same rate as legislators in special sessions—$50 per day, plus $75 per diem expenses.

All votes in the convention would be open and the key Rules Committee would be elected by the membership.

Maybe Mississippi is further along the road toward writing a new state constitution than even some of us skeptics believed.

But a new constitution after 100 years is not exactly breaking the speed limit.

Mississippi House of Representatives
Jackson

Looking at the 1987 Legislative Session

JACKSON—Money matters are expected to again command high priority when Mississippi legislators convene in January to kick off the last regular session of their current term.

A proposed $1.547 billion general fund budget has been adopted by the Joint Legislative Budget Committee for consideration by members of the House of Representatives and Senate. This is an increase of $41 million, or about 2.7 percent, over the present fiscal year but substantially below budget requests submitted by most state agencies and institutions.

One of the toughest responsibilities of any session is the allocation of operating funds for schools, universities, prison facilities, mental institutions and other programs. The job has been especially frustrating in view of revenue problems that have plagued Mississippi, as well as most states, over the past few years. It won't get any easier in 1987.

The operating budgets of most agencies and institutions were reduced in the 1986 session because of the tight money situation. It is generally agreed lawmakers must continue to keep close watch on state spending in the coming session. However, there are conflicting views on how to handle these critical budget problems and whether additional revenues will have to be raised to meet essential needs.

Highway construction, sovereign immunity for governmental bodies, rising costs of liability insurance, and adequate insurance protection for rural areas are other key issues awaiting legislative attention.

In addition, House and Senate members may find themselves wrestling over such wide-ranging matters as the financial plight of Mississippi farmers, proposals to stimulate economic development, home rule for counties, constitutional revision, registration of residential child care facilities, conflict of interest standards for public officials, legislative rule changes, legal protection for tenants of rental property, and the never-ending struggle over prison crowding.

In the House, the opening gavel will be rapped at noon Tuesday, Jan. 6, by Speaker C. B. "Buddie" Newman. The 90-day session is due to end April 5 unless an extension is required. The opening-day agenda in the House includes swearing-in of two new members chosen in special elections in 1986 to fill vacancies, Representatives Clifford Britt of Wesson and Robert D. "Don" Underwood of Brookhaven.

Scores of bills and resolutions have been prefiled and will be ready for formal introduction at the start of the session. The measures will be studied by the committees as the session unfolds, and those winning committee approval will be placed on the House and Senate calendars for floor action.

Highways may be among the big topics in 1987 with a strong effort likely to pass a bill for construction and financing of a four-lane road program to better serve the state's transportation needs. Legislation is expected to be presented for financing more than 1,000 miles around the state, with specific highways designated and construction priorities established in the bill. Different financing options have been discussed including a proposed gasoline tax increase of 3-cents to 5-cents a gallon.

A series of meetings was held last summer by members of the House Transportation Committee to get public sentiment regarding highways from all sections of the state. In addition, a businessmen's group called Advocating Highways for Economic Advancement and Development (AHEAD) was formed to help promote highway improvements.

Separate budget recommendations, in keeping with state law, will be submitted to lawmakers by the Legislative Budget Committee and the Governor's Office. While the proposals differ in a number of areas, both involve general fund spending of over $1.5 billion in the 1987-1988 fiscal year.

Both recommendations provide for continued funding of the Education Reform Program, including public kindergartens, and another $1,000-pay raise for public school teachers next fall, the third annual increase mandated by the teacher salary plan enacted in 1985 with raises totaling $4,400 over a three-year period.

The Legislative Budget Committee's proposal includes $145.9 million in general support for the state's eight universities, an increase of $3.2 million over this year but still below the allocation for the previous year. A $52.8 million appropriation was recommended for general support of junior colleges, up $2.8 million over this year but also less than the year before.

A tax increase to help fund higher education has been proposed by some groups including the Mississippi Economic Council and the Council for Support of Public Higher Education in Mississippi, consisting of several business leaders in the state.

Other items which may spark legislative debate in 1987 include proposals to authorize district attorneys to assist in obtaining restitution from people accused of passing bad checks; increase the compulsory school attendance age from 13 to 16; provide assistance to crime victims; impose stiffer penalties for students found guilty of assaulting teachers; allow Mississippians to vote on the question of a statewide lottery; authorize pay raises for judges; create a state Rural Risk Underwriting Association; revise the composition of the state College Board; repeal or amend the state's auto inspection law; and revamp the Mississippi Memorial Stadium Commission.

Many additional issues will draw lawmakers' attention in what promises to be another busy, hard-working session.

A Senate Universities and Colleges Subcommittee recommends that the Legislature give the eight state-supported universities a minimum of $4 million more in next year's budget and that no universities be closed or consolidated.

The subcommittee released its report of recommendations after completing a two-year study that included visits to the eight state-supported universities and the two professional schools—the School of Veterinary Medicine and the School of Dentistry.

Members of the subcommittee are Senators Doug Anderson of Jackson, chairman of the full committee; Nevin Sledge of Cleveland, chairman of the subcommittee; Jay Disharoon of Port Gibson; John Keeton of Grenada; Eddie Briggs of DeKalb; Malcolm Mabry of Dublin; Ronnie Shows of Bassfield; Ken Harper of Vicksburg; and John White of Baldwin.

"The state made a commitment to the Highway Department back in 1972. In 1982, the state made a commitment to public education with the Education Reform Act. It's time we made a commitment to higher education," Sledge said.

He noted that the $4 million cut from university budgets this year has caused morale problems among students and faculty and that many top faculty members are going out of state to accept better paying jobs.

The committee did not recommend closure or merger of any of the universities, a move which went against the recommendation by the Governor and the College Board earlier this year. "After studying the facts, the committee came to the conclusion that without a shadow of a doubt Mississippi does not have too many universities. We have less than the other Southern states. It is hard for us to support three comprehensive universities like the other states support their one comprehensive university, but we are doing the best we can."

Closing universities or professional schools would cost the state a lot of additional money in having to pay off indebtedness on buildings and fighting lawsuits, not to mention the economic impact of the communities," Sledge said.

The committee did recommend coordination of programs and facilities between Mississippi State University and Mississippi University for Women.

"The committee wants to see better utilization of the unused buildings at MUW. We want the two presidents to work out plans for this. MUW has the highest cost per student, largely due to unused facilities. I do not force this as a means of merging the universities, but as reducing the cost to the state by better utilizing facilities," Anderson said.

Other recommendations of the committee include:

- *maintain the designation of "university" at each of the eight institutions of higher learning.

- *maintain the present system of governance of higher education as opposed to going to a proposed "university system" with one chancellor serving as head of all the institutions.

- *funding for "Centers of Excellence" should not be utilized to deprive any university of basic support.

- *the College Board should continue to examine and degreasing off-campus center which is not self-supporting. The committee found that the presently operating centers are viable.

- *restore junior college funding to an adequate level.

- *continue to operate the Vet School and Dental School.

- *specific recommendations include: a stadium for Alcorn; a Fine Arts facility for Delta State; land acquisition and dormitories for Jackson State; additional facilities for Mississippi State; consider having the state pay off bonded indebtedness on buildings at MUW; purchase equipment for the new laundry at Mississippi Valley State University; meet repair and renovation needs at the University of Mississippi; and acquire land for University of Southern Mississippi.

Lung Disease: facts at a glance-1986

Lung diseases are the third most common cause of death in America.

The lung disease mortality rate is rising faster than any other major category in this country.

Some 19 million Americans suffer from some form of chronic lung disease, including emphysema and chronic bronchitis.

Lung cancer remains the leading cancer killer in the U.S.

Occupational lung disease still ranks as the number one cause of work-related disease and injury.

The direct and indirect economic cost of respiratory illness to our nation adds up to an estimated 40.9 billion annually.

Over the past 35 years, lung cancer among American women has risen by 380%.

At least 85% of all lung cancer deaths in this country are due to smoking.

Almost eight million persons (2.5 million under the age of 18) have asthma.

Almost eight million persons have chronic bronchitis.

Some 2.3 million persons have emphysema. Prevalence has increased by 77% since 1970.

Pneumonia is the leading cause of death by infectious disease in the U.S.

Respiratory disease is the leading cause of death among infants less than one year of age, accounting for 42% of deaths in that age group.

Respiratory distress syndrome (RDS) is the number one cause of death in the first 28 days after birth.

Sudden infant death syndrome (SIDS) causes 5,000 infant deaths yearly in the U.S.

An estimated 14% of premature births each year in the U.S. are due to maternal smoking.

Christmas Seal supported programs of the Mississippi Lung Association include patient services, public information, medical education and research to prevent and control lung diseases for Mississippians of all ages.

Some friendly suggestions for being first a friend, then a host - from AAA

JACKSON—Is the host or hostess responsible for guests getting home safely from holiday parties? In some parts of the country, the legal answer is yes, but regardless of local laws, the moral answer is definitely yes!

AAA Mississippi urges all party givers to be "First a Friend, Then a Host" this holiday season. "The responsibility of the host—certainly a friend—is to discourage excessive drinking by any guest," said George Scheffel. "As a friend, the host or hostess should find ways to make it easy for those who will be driving to stay sober," Scheffel added.

"Society's attitude has changed due to the efforts of many organizations which have fought to eliminate drunk driving from our roadways. It is not unusual for a guest to say 'No thanks! I'm driving!' when offered alcohol at a party," said Scheffel.

The total cost of drunk driving to society has been estimated at $26.3 billion per year. This estimate does not include the unmeasurable toll of human suffering.

"First a Friend, Then a Host" is a viable counter measure to drinking and driving. One out of every two traffic deaths in America is alcohol related.

AAA Mississippi offers these suggestions for party hosting:

—If you serve alcoholic drinks, make non-alcoholic beverages available and make certain that everyone knows both are to be had.

—As guests arrive for your party, encourage one person in each couple or group to be the "designated driver" and thereby assure a safe ride home for your guests. Provide a gift for the designated driver as an incentive.

—Prove your lavishness and creativity as a host with a tempting display of food. Offer new foods throughout the evening. Walk around the room with menu additions. Avoid preparing highly seasoned or salty foods or snacks, as these merely make your guests thirsty.

—Use "normal" (one-ounce) portions of liquor in mixed drinks—or less, and don't mix "strong" or "stiff" drinks.

—Don't be a "pour" host and push drinks on your guests. Serve drinks only upon request.

—Remember that a 12-ounce bottle of beer, a five-ounce glass of wine and a 1½-ounce shot of liquor (mixed or straight) all "pack the same punch" per drink, as they all contain the same amount of alcohol.

—Close the bar at least an hour before people are expected to leave. Bring on the non-alcoholic beverages, coffee, tea and a dessert.

—If a guest has had too much to drink, offer to drive him or her home, or have the person sleep over. You may have to exercise diplomacy in arranging for a guest to go home as a passenger rather than a driver, but if you're a real friend, you'll find a way. Remember that only time sobers you up.

The American Automobile Association is a federation of Motor Clubs with more than 1,000 clubs and branches serving over 27 million members in the United States and Canada.

RDA figures are too low—such as those for calcium—while other are too high.

A common problem that is difficult to control is the loss of taste and smell among the elderly which can lead to poor nutrition. Nerves that carry taste sensation and the taste buds decline. The smell center of the brain also degenerates.

Some believe a connection may exist between the loss of smell and depression among the elderly because the smell center and the centers of emotion in the brain are in such close proximity. Often, flavor enhancers added to foods encourage better eating and improve spirits among the elderly.

Drugs taken for various chronic ailments also can affect appetite and taste—a widespread problem among elderly patients. Doctors estimate that more than 80 percent of the people over 60 years old take one or more drugs for chronic ailments.

Aside from altering taste, drugs taken alone or in combination can decrease the body's ability to absorb nutrients.

Exercise also is considered by doctors and nutritionists to be important in reducing malnutrition among the elderly. A sedentary lifestyle often leads to a lack of appetite, causing loss of the crucial nutrients to be consumed.

Elderly people should do their best to get as many fresh fruits and vegetables as possible. Extra vitamins may be recommended for some patients—but a doctor should be consulted first—because too many vitamins can be harmful. Unsupervised doses of vitamins, or megavitamin therapy, can be dangerous because ingestion of toxic amounts of certain vitamins and minerals is possible.

Weekend fires reported in Hancock

Three weekend building fires in Hancock County caused extensive property damage but no injuries.

The home of Danny Hamby on Fenton Road was destroyed Friday night, according to Lester C. Curvin, chief of the Fenton Volunteer Fire Department.

Curvin said, Hamby, who was alone in the house, left a pot burning on the stove and was awakened by a smoke detector. He escaped from the house without injury.

Members of the BaySide Park Volunteer Fire Department fought unsuccessfully to save the unoccupied house of Woodrow Geisel of Route 6, Box 30, in an early Sunday morning fire. The fire is under investigation by the county fire marshal, said Albinus Zoerner, assistant fire chief.

The unoccupied trailer of Michael McDaniel at the corner of Atlantic Street and Avenue B was "lost before it was called in" at 8:11 p.m. Sunday, said William M. Fields Jr., president of the East Hancock Volunteer Fire Department.

Five firetrucks answered that call, but the inside of the trailer was engulfed in flames when the first truck arrived, and firefighters were unable to stop the fire, Fields said.

Point of Law

(Prepared by the Mississippi State Bar. Some rights may vary from locality to locality. Always consult an attorney when in doubt about your legal rights.)

Q: I own a small business. I received a garnishment on one of my employees which says "I am to withhold 65 percent of each paycheck. I thought only 25 percent of each paycheck would be withheld and that an employee had to get at least $33 per week even if they are garnished. How much should I withhold?"

A: When you receive garnishments to collect back child support or alimony, you should withhold 55 percent of your employee's earnings if he is married and 65 percent of his earnings if he is single, regardless of how much he makes.

You should begin withholding immediately upon receipt of the garnishment and release the money to the court clerk as it is collected. If you fail to answer a garnishment, your company will be liable for the full amount requested in the garnishment.

Q: I am a widow and own my own home. When I die I want my son to have it, but when he dies I want it to go to my granddaughter. Is there any way I can do this?

Yes. In your will you can devise the home to your son for the period of his lifetime, with a provision that upon his death the remainder will go to your granddaughter. If you do this then, even if your son sells his interest in the house, when he dies the ownership automatically goes to your granddaughter.

Calm down, calm down, relax, there's no need to panic - even if you're miles behind in your Christmas shopping - just do as I do, and truly start "cooking up a storm" and add to your gift packages a few - or more - special offerings that say that you took a little time as well as thought to please those you love at Yuletide.

You may think, as many do, that a jar of homemade sauce or jelly or preserves or what have you, isn't a special present - let me tell you my story:

Some years ago - alright, many years ago, when I was a young wife and mother, existing on a young newspaperman's salary in uptown New Orleans, augmented a bit by my free-lance writing, I hit upon the idea of making brownies for Christmas presents.

To make a long story short - which I rarely do - the brownies turned out to be such a popular and happily received gift, that when our fortunes improved, and I began to give rather nicer - in my younger opinion - and more suitable gifts, taking into consideration our improved finances, I was met rather often with a plaintive - "No Brownies?"

So, back to the brownies I've gone - not only at Christmastime, but all through the year - when I expend more than the cost of the ingredients on the postal charges to keep my two eldest grandsons, at college in South Carolina, and their friends supplied with "Gran's Brownies." Well, they're home for the holidays - so, I think I'll bake up a special batch! So, here's:

GRAN'S BROWNIES
(Used to be Mom's Brownies)
2 sticks butter or margarine (use the butter, after all, it's Christmastime)
3 Tablespoons cocoa
4 eggs
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 1/3 cups flour
1 cup pecan halves (or pieces)
Melt the butter in a saucepan, add the cocoa and remove from the heat. In a bowl, mix the eggs, sugar and vanilla, add the flour and mix all and blend well. Pour the cocoa-butter mixture into the flour mixture, and stir in the pecans.

Bake in a greased cake pan, oblong, for a half hour at 350 degrees, approximately - we like them rather "gunky" moist and chewy - you may prefer them more cakey - you cooked 'em too much" as my family used to say if I left them overlong in the oven - but that's your preference!

At any rate, let the brownies cool in the pan before you cut them - and enjoy!

Health Department offering vaccine

A newly-developed vaccine against pneumococcal disease is now available through county health departments at $5 per injection.

"Mississippi is one of the first states in the South to offer this vaccine through health department clinics," said Kenneth Laliberte, director of the Mississippi State Department of Health Immunization Program. "The vaccine has been available through private physicians for several years."

Three types of pneumococcal disease - pneumonia, bacteremia, and meningitis - affect a significant number of Americans each year.

Pneumococcal pneumonia is the most common type of bacterial pneumonia, annually accounting for between 150,000 and 570,000 cases nationwide; an estimated five percent of these cases are fatal.

The other pneumococcal diseases are less common but more serious. Pneumococcal bacteremia affects 16,000 to 55,000 Americans a year, with up to 20 percent mortality; 30 percent of the 2,600 to 6,200 pneumococcal meningitis victims die.

Individuals with certain chronic conditions such as sickle cell disease, Hodgkin's disease, multiple myeloma, cirrhosis, alcoholism, renal failure, cerebrospinal fluid leakage, and conditions associated with immunosuppression are at increased risk of developing serious pneumococcal infections.

Public health officials particularly recommend pneumococcal vaccination for adults and children aged two years and older with chronic illnesses specifically associated with increased risk for pneumococcal disease; adults with other long-term illnesses, especially those involving the heart or lungs; and all adults aged 65 and over.

Individuals who have had the pneumococcal vaccine should not take it again.

She worked in sales and marketing for Progressive Marketing Services, Inc. and an advertising sales representative for the Sea Coast Echo Newspaper in Bay St. Louis.

At USM she was a radio, television and film writer for the Communication Journal, a liberal arts publication.

Bay schools request use of old hospital

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has received yet another request for use of the Hancock General Hospital building, but three supervisors say they would rather sell the facility.

Dr. Roger Oge, Superintendent of the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District, appeared before the board Monday to request that the supervisors consider allowing the school district to use the facility.

He said schools are presently overcrowded and the district could use any space it could obtain.

The school board voted Monday night to provide the supervisors with a written resolution on the matter.

Oge said after the school board meeting that the hospital building would probably be most suitable for use as office space for the district, freeing a section of the Bay Senior High School building for instructional use.

Beat Five Supervisor James Travira said the county is currently trying to obtain appraisals of the hospital building's market value.

Board President A.A. Kellar added that a Tennessee firm has looked at the possibility of buying the hospital, which is scheduled to be vacated in February when Hancock Medical Center opens.

The County Welfare Department has also requested use of the Hancock General Hospital building, but on Monday the board was presented with a request for assistance with a Community Development Block Grant application that could get the welfare department a new building.

The supervisors authorized Gulf Regional Planning Commission to assist with the grant application, but not before Beat One Supervisor Bert Courge suggested trying to obtain a grant to renovate the hospital building.

The biggest problem with renovations would be repairing existing roof problems, according to Beat Four Supervisor Sam Perniciaro, who said construction of a new building would be less expensive.

"We might have a better chance to get a grant for renovations than to get a grant for a whole new building, and there are other county offices that could go in there," Courge said.

He suggested that the Bay-Waveland-Hancock County Civil Defense Office be moved into the building, but was told by other supervisors that space had been reserved for that office in the jail building, which will be vacated when the new Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility is completed.

Courge protested that he had been told that there was no room for civil defense offices in the jail.

He said he still feels the county can find some use for the hospital building.

"I think we should sell it," Beat Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner said.

After unanimously approving Welfare Department Director Wallace Bradley's request for assistance with the application for grant funds for a new building, the supervisors agreed to vote on a separate motion by Courge.

Courge's motion requested that a second grant application be prepared to try to obtain renovation funds.

Perniciaro said he had no objection to trying to obtain a renovation grant as long as doing so would not endanger the county's chance of obtaining a new construction grant.

He seconded the motion, but it was defeated on a 3-2 vote with Kellar, Ladner and Travira voting no.

Other requests the board has received for the hospital have included use as doctor's offices and use as a nursing home and drug and alcohol rehabilitation facility.

The Hancock Medical Center Building, according to Administrator Phillip Wolfe, is expected to be completed in 30 to 45 days but paving of an access road and parking lots must be finished before the facility can open.

Havens issues statement on refund

Lynn Havens, Public Service Commissioner of the Southern District, has issued the following statement:

"The Public Service Commission has approved in excess of $13,000,000 to be refunded to the customers of Mississippi Power Company from a settlement and recovery of fuel charges from Peabody Coal Company.

"In addition to the $13,000,000 plus refund, beginning Jan. 1, 1987, Mississippi Power Company customers will enjoy a lower fuel charge.

"The reduction in fuel charges of $6,000,000 was made possible by a review of the Public Service Commission and the Company's re-negotiating coal contracts which will lower Mississippi Power Company's fuel costs in the years ahead.

"In achieving the lower fuel costs, Mississippi Power Company's rates remain some of the lowest in the nation."

Havens further stated that through requests of the Public Utility Staff to analyze the rate structure, Mississippi Power Company customers will be paying 5 percent less for electricity than they were in 1983.

"The refund and the re-negotiating of coal contracts enable me to continue my commitment to seek for the lowest possible electric rates while keeping a high quality service to electric customers. The refund checks will be mailed mid-December," Havens added.

"I will continue to look for ways to reduce the costs to Mississippi Power Company customers and I would expect the cooperation of the Company in achieving the same goals."

County to request bill permitting assistance for injured worker

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has decided to ask the state legislature for a local and private bill that would allow the county to assist with medical expenses for an injured county employee.

Beat One Supervisor Bert Courge asked for the bill to allow the county to assist Charles Lydell Moran Jr. with expenses incurred after he was injured on the job Nov. 21.

The county's insurance program does not presently cover on-the-job accidents, Courge explained.

The county does not have Workman's Compensation Insurance but has advertised for bids on it. The bids are scheduled to be opened at the Jan. 5 supervisors' meeting.

Courge said Moran was operating a mower when the device threw a piece of wire that went through the worker's face and lodged in his neck, blocking a blood vessel and causing a stroke.

Moran is presently in a Louisiana hospital for rehabilitation therapy.

The machine had a metal mesh shield on it but the wire was small enough to penetrate that shield, the supervisor explained.

The board has since authorized County Road Maintenance Superintendent Bill Johnson to have plexiglass shields installed on the mowers.

According to Chancery Clerk Michael Nicaise, the county has medical insurance that would cover illness on the job or incidents like heart attacks, but not accidents.

Nicaise said the county has had difficulty obtaining insurance in the past because insurance companies tend to drop coverage for municipalities.

He said Mississippi Association of Supervisors has been trying to find a company that will agree to supply coverage to all of its members.

At the time of Moran's accident, the county was attempting to negotiate broader medical insurance coverage.

Contract awarded for Interstate 10 work

Bob Joiner, Southern District Highway Commissioner, reported the awarding of a contract for work on Interstate 10 in Hancock, Harrison and Jackson Counties. Wallace Construction Inc. of Columbia, the low bidder, received the contract award at a cost of $136,442.

Joiner explained that the work includes replacing centerline pavement markings on the westbound lane and raised pavement markers on the both eastbound and westbound lanes.

The work is necessary because use of the interstate caused the centerline stripes to be worn away, and many of the pavement markers have been broken and have lost their reflectivity.

The commissioner said the project covers 43.48 miles beginning at the west end of the Jordan River Bridge and terminating at the end of the concrete pavement section east of the Mississippi Highway 57 interchange.

Joiner said he is pleased to begin work on this project, and he is confident its completion will improve the safety of motorists travelling on Interstate 10. He asks that all those driving through the project limits exercise caution.

The completion date is April 30, 1987.

Student's drinking at home her own business, judge says

JACKSON— The Mississippi Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that a school board can't discipline a student for sipping a beer at home.

Associated Press reports the court blocked the Warren County School Board from stripping Renee Wilkinson, an honor student at Warren Central High, of credits for a semester.

An opinion by Justice Ruble Griffin said the case "epitomizes the misuse of good law."

State law allows school boards to suspend or expel pupils for misconduct at school or on their way to or from school. Students aren't allowed to drink alcohol.

But, Griffin said, "The plain reading of the rule clearly reveals that the appellee did not violate it. The beer was consumed in her home. She did not have possession of it on the way to school."

He said he doubts that the School Board has the authority to keep a student from drinking beer at home and added, "It is elementary that it is a violation of due process to punish one for conduct that has not been lawfully condemned."

Wilkinson was exempt from examinations because of perfect attendance and deportment and good grades, but she went to school after her parents had gone to work.

After lunch, the principal had her removed from class and extracted an admission that she had taken a few sips of beer at home.

"There was no odor of beer on Renee's breath or any evidence of misconduct," Griffin said.

He said the pupil handbook at Warren Central divided offenses into types, with Type IV, the harshest, including stealing and possession of weapons, punishable by 10-day or longer suspensions.

"It taxes the credulity of the court to believe that two or three sips of beer at home is as heinous an offense as stealing or carrying a weapon," Griffin said.

THIRD BIRTHDAY—Wannetta Tennille Payne celebrated her third birthday December 7. She is the daughter of Debra Payne and Isaac Joseph Darenburg of Catahoula. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Flower of Catahoula and Mr. and Mrs. Marc Payne of Picayune.

Boston cook adds variety to enliven Christmas turkey leftovers

HATTIESBURG— After the Christmas feast is over and done, the problem of what to do with leftover turkey or other meats can baffle the most proficient kitchen experts.

In addition to traditional turkey sandwiches or turkey salads, a variety of fix-and-freeze casseroles, gump and oriental-guided recipes are available to put that pizzazz into the leftover meat, which can become tiresome before the carcass is discarded.

Dr. Mary Ruth Bedford, a visiting professor from Boston in the University of Southern Mississippi School of Home Economics, said, "turkey is scrumptious all year round since it is nice and lean and can be cooked or roasted, then frozen to eat later."

She offers a variety of recipes for cooks who use turkey as a main ingredient, and offers a word of caution about leaving dishes that include meat, eggs or milk sitting out. Bedford said all foods should be refrigerated promptly after meals to avoid food poisoning, especially since modern microwaves make heating the dishes so convenient.

Sausage may be added to the recipes outlined below, she said, to add a special flavor that "won't quit."

Oprah Winfrey becomes Mississippi ambassador

Actress and talk show hostess Oprah Winfrey became a Mississippi Ambassador recently while in Jackson, to speak at the annual Head Start Parents' Association meeting.

The Mississippi Ambassador Program is a public awareness campaign designed to encourage Mississippians to promote positive aspects of the State.

A Mississippi Ambassador receives a fact card on significant people and occurrences in Mississippi, a quarterly newsletter keeping them up to date on happenings, a membership card and an official pin designed similar to the state seal. There is no fee to become a Mississippi Ambassador.

At a reception immediately following her speaking engagement, Winfrey was awarded a Mississippi Ambassador membership card and an official pin making her the first native Mississippian living outside the State to be inducted into the program.

Governor Bill Allain, aided by Barbara Barrett and John Horhn representing the Department of Economic Development, also presented Winfrey with several books and other gifts typifying those things indigenous to Mississippi.

The Mississippi Ambassador Program was officially launched by Governor Allain Dec. 10 at the Trade Mart Center in Jackson. Thirty food producers from around the State were on hand to provide "A Taste of Mississippi." The public was invited to attend.

Weekly state crop report, Dec. 6-12

Warm, wet fall good for state's winter pastures

The same warm, wet fall that caused problems for soybean farmers has produced excellent pasture growing conditions for the state's livestock producers.

"It has been a good fall for our winter pastures," said Dr. Lamar Kimbrough, an agronomist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"Most of the pastures look better at this point than they have in years."

According to Kimbrough, the major winter grazing crop in Mississippi is ryegrass. Much of this ryegrass is planted with wheat and oats as small grain, ryegrass mixtures and some of it is planted with clover.

"The warm, mild weather and rains have made these ryegrass pastures grow extremely well," Kimbrough said. "The only problem so far is that large amounts of rain on some pastures have created a need for more fertilizer."

Cattle producers use winter grazing crops as feed for livestock until permanent summer pastures green next spring.

Although the wet weather hasn't yet been a major problem for pastures, Kimbrough said producers should follow certain practices to keep pastures in good condition through the winter.

"Producers need to keep cattle off of wet and frozen fields," Kimbrough said. "If cattle get on wet fields, they trample the grass and leave hoofprints that will hold water and freeze and damage the pasture."

The agronomist said producers should also keep cattle off of pastures early in the mornings to give plants time to thaw out from heavy frosts.

"Letting cattle graze just in the afternoon or maybe every other day will save grazing and protect pastures."

Kimbrough said hay supplies to supplement winter pastures appear to be adequate and producers should have few problems getting hay.

"There is enough total hay in the state to get us through the winter," Kimbrough said. "There may be some isolated shortages in northern Mississippi, but even northern producers will be able to buy hay within the state."

In other agriculture news county extension agents in the state last week reported that most soybean harvesting remains stalled from wet fields.

In south Mississippi, Walthall County extension agent Louis Crawford said soybean producers are through harvesting, but some crops were left in the fields. About 90 percent of the county's wheat crop is planted.

Jasper County agent Ed Williams said rains during mid-week stalled remaining field work again but soybean producers managed to complete harvest in the previous week.

Forrest County agent Malcolm Broome said soybean harvest is almost complete but many producers were left with damaged beans and reduced prices at the elevator.

In Franklin County, extension agent Ray Reynolds said winter grazing crops in the county are excellent.

"Many producers have more grazing available than they have cattle to eat it," Reynolds said.

In central Mississippi, Leake County agent Don Schmidt said several hundred acres of soybeans are still in the fields that will probably not be harvested. Beef producers are feeding hay to keep cattle off wet pastures.

Chickasaw County agent William Johnson said farmers harvested some soybeans last week despite high moisture levels. Wheat planting in the county cannot be completed until soybean harvest is complete, Johnson said.

"Winter grazing crops are in excellent conditions," he said. "But many of our pastures are too wet to graze."

In Yalobusha and Tallahatchie counties, extension agent Doyle Varner said some soybeans are still in the field and rains early in the week delayed harvest again.

Farm program calls for 35 percent cut in feed grain acres

Since feed grain carryover stocks are expected to remain large at the end of the season, Franklin A. Gennin, CED of the Pearl River-Hancock County ASCS Office, says farmers may want to study the benefits of the 1967 feed grain acreage reduction program to their farming operation. The sign-up period opened Nov. 17.

In an effort to reduce planted acreage, production, and total supplies to a level more in line with demand, the feed grain program contains a 20 percent acreage reduction requirement and an optional 15 percent paid land diversion. Farmers may request 40 percent of their projected 1967 deficiency payments and 50 percent of their diversion payment at sign-up, according to Gennin.

"One-half of the advance deficiency and diversion payments will be issued in cash and the remainder will be paid in generic commodity certificates," Gennin said.

USDA estimates that per bushel deficiency payment rates will be $1.21 for corn, $1.14 for sorghum, $1.11 for barley and $1.55 for oats. Diversion payment rates are: corn, $2.00; sorghum, $1.90; barley, $1.60; and oats, $3.80.

Farmers who participate in the 1967 Feed Grain Program will be eligible for the same target price protection as in 1966 — $3.63 per bushel for corn, $2.88 for sorghum, $2.60 for barley and $1.60 for oats. They are also eligible for price support loans at $1.62 per bushel for corn, $1.74 for sorghum, $1.49 for barley, $1.94 for oats and $1.55 per bushel for rye. Gennin said feed grain program participants will be eligible to earn deficiency payments on the acres planted within the permitted acreage, the same as in 1966. Producers who plant at least 50 percent of the permitted acreage to a program crop and devote the remaining permitted acreage to a conserving use will be eligible to receive deficiency payments on 92 percent of the permitted acreage.

"Production of alternate crops on acreage conservation reserve land will not be permitted," said Gennin "and grazing will be authorized at the request of the State ASCS Committee, except during any consecutive five-month period designated by the Committee."

To be eligible to participate in the program for one crop on the farm, the ASCS official said producers will be required to plant within the crop acreage base for each other program crop on the farm. Cross compliance was not a requirement under the 1966 program.

U.S. feed grain production for 1966 is forecast at 250 million metric tons, 9 percent less than last year's record crop and the second largest ever. Corn is expected to supply about 8.2 billion bushels of the total, while about 847 million bushels are sorghum.

Further details of the 1967 feed grain acreage reduction and land diversion program are available from the Pearl River-Hancock County ASCS Office. The sign-up period ends March 30, 1967.

Martin Marietta receives NASA productivity award for shuttle external tank

Martin Marietta Corporation has been awarded the NASA Public Service Group Achievement Award "in recognition of sustained performance in productivity improvement programs" developed for the Space Shuttle external tank over the past six years.

NASA cited Martin Marietta Michoud Aerospace for producing the tanks "on schedule, at the lowest cost, using manufacturing processes consistent with the highest safety and environmental standards, while enabling mission success and improved quality of employee work life."

The Public Service group Achievement

Award is the highest honor given to a group of non-government employees in recognition of outstanding accomplishment which contributed substantially to the mission of NASA.

The award, the only one presented to a company for quality and productivity improvements, was presented at the 1966 NASA Headquarters Annual Honor Awards Ceremony.

Martin Marietta manufactures the huge external tanks in NASA's Michoud Assembly Facility at New Orleans under contract to NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Ala.

SSC Ninth Grade rallies to defeat Stone

For over three quarters, it looked like the St. Stanislaus Ninth Grade Basketball Team's perfect 6-0 record would come to an end as Stone County held as much as an eight point lead over the Rockchaws.

Point guard Greg Schruft had different ideas, however, as he led the unbeaten Rocks to a thrilling 50-43 victory over previously unbeaten Stone County in a game played Monday afternoon in Wiggins.

Schruft scored 11 points in the fourth quarter, and split Stone's zone defense by penetrating and then passing off to his open teammates for easy shots.

Shannon Garrett was high point man for the Rockchaws with 14 points, followed by Schruft with 13 points, and Cedric Smith with 12 points.

For Stone, Robert Martin led all scorers with 17 points, and John McCray added 14 points.

Although the score was tied 9-9 at the end of the first quarter, Stone outscored the Rocks 16-14 to take a slim 25-23 halftime lead. It was the first time all season that the Freshman Rockchaws trailed at halftime.

Stone increased their lead in the third quarter by outscoring the Rocks 8-4, bringing the score to 33-27 going into the fourth quarter.

The Tomcats hit four in the fourth quarter points, and appeared to be on the verge of breaking the game wide open. The Rocks fought back, playing heads-up basketball and began to whittle the lead down.

With a few minutes left in the game, the Rocks took the lead and never relinquished it. Stone attempted to go to a man-to-man defense, which the Rockchaws easily handled.

Coach Rod Herring praised the efforts of his talented squad, and expressed how proud he was that his team never felt they were out of the game. Coach Herring said that their 23-point fourth quarter effort was a tribute to how well they play together.

In the preliminary 8th Grade contest, Stone defeated SSC by a score of 35-28. Stone County held a slim 17-14 halftime edge, and outscored the Rocks 18-14 in the second half to preserve the victory.

Kendall Daniels led the Rocks with 14 points, scoring in every quarter. Galen Smith added six points, and Billy Saunders had four points.

For Stone, Eddie Hall had 11 points, and Charles Hinton sank 10 points to lead the Tomcat victory.

This afternoon the SSC Freshman Team hosts St. Martin in a 5 p.m. home game. There will be no preliminary seventh and eighth grade contest before the ninth grade game.

Wildcats, 9-6, on Christmas break

POPLARVILLE—Pearl River College basketball coach Peter Georgian is very pleased with his 9-6 Wildcats.

"I don't think I could have asked for much more," said Georgian, who is sending his 'Cats home a few days for the Christmas break.

"Considering I came in late (Georgian replaced Lawrence Smith in September) I don't think we have done too bad here during this first semester," Georgian said.

The Wildcats have put together a 9-6 overall ledger as well as a 3-1 conference mark. Conference wins have been over Utica, East Central and Hinds. The only conference setback was to the Southwest Bears.

"We've had so many road games (11 during one 15 day stretch) it has been very difficult getting in all my offense and defense," Georgian said. "But we have it now. And all we have to do is work out the little things we are doing wrong."

The Wildcats placed second in the Pensacola Thanksgiving Tournament, the Hinds Invitational and the Bossier City Tournament this past weekend.

Friday night the Wildcats advanced to the finals of the Bossier tournament with 77-71 victory over Camden, Arkansas.

Sophomore John Walker led the Wildcats with 18 points, while Adrian McCray, Jerry Ellis and Thomas Foster each had 14.

On Saturday night the Wildcats lost to host Bossier City 79-66 as the PRC team was outscored with 38 team fouls and never reached one-and-one situations.

Ellis scored 18 that night with McCray adding 14, Walker 12 and Foster 10.

"Our bench has been coming through at crucial times," Georgian said. "In fact, you can attribute three or four wins to our bench." Georgian said he was playing nine and ten players each game and that the team was working well together.

Here at Christmas break, Picayune's McCray is averaging 19 points and 11 rebounds, while Penticost's John Walker is pumping in 14 and seven rebounds.

Three other players, Foster, a freshman from College Park, Georgia; sophomore Steve Bankston of Holden, Louisiana, and Ellis, a sophomore from Picayune, are averaging 10 points each per contest.

Foster is averaging seven assists and Bankston six rebounds.

Georgian said his Wildcats have been playing really tough competition this semester. "Two of our losses have been to eighth-ranked Pensacola and two of our wins have come over top-twenty teams."

"I think we could be a really good team," Georgian said. "We just need to work out the little things we are doing wrong."

The Wildcats will open the 1987 part of the season Thursday, Jan. 8, against Southern Baptist College at home and then begin the tough competition of the South Division Monday, Jan. 12 against Southwest at home.

Robert Hargett, Lawrence Thomas and Greg Neosais combined for 38 points as Bay St. Louis defeated Pearl River Central, 86-46, Tuesday in the Tigerzone.

Hargett led PRC's Darrell Carter for game-high honors with 14 points. Thomas sank 13 points and Neosais 11.

The 3-6 Tigers raced to a 24-18 halftime advantage and built their lead to 48-26 after three periods.

In the girls opener, Anita Dupont made a steal and passed to Shannon Massey for the winning basket with two seconds left as Pearl River Central took a 30-29 overtime victory over the Tigerettes.

in 28 points, grabbed 8 rebounds and made 3 steals to pace the 8-7 Blue Devils. Shannon Massey added 16 points, 9 rebounds, 3 steals and 6 assists. Jennifer Loezetti had 4 steals and 4 assists.

Mirissa Lyons earned 27 points and passed out 7 assists to lead the Tigerettes. Lora Moran added 13 points while Lamontia Williams hit the backboards for a game-high 11 rebounds.

The game was tied 26-26 at the end of regulation.

Mississippi artist's grandson returns the "Pelican" to Chandeleur Island

Years ago, Walter Anderson sailed to Chandeleur Island to watch the pelicans there and, in his unique style, to capture their beauty on paper.

Today, Walter Anderson is regarded as a major American watercolorist. His works are displayed in many American museums and is being added to major American art collections including that of the Smithsonian Institute.

During the time between 1944 until his death in 1965, Anderson spent the majority of his time on the islands painting the wildlife and the surroundings and left behind a 20-year chronicle of his experiences that has been published in several forms.

It was also during this time he grieved to watch the massive pelican flock disappear from Chandeleur due to the DDT that was carried down the Mississippi River into the Gulf of Mexico.

Today, the late Ocean Springs artist's 27-year old grandson, John Mark Stebly, spends most of his time on that 25-mile barrier island where the endangered bird now thrives.

Members of Stebly's family like to say he has "returned the Pelican to the island." He is the skipper of a fishing houseboat, appropriately christened Pelican in honor of his grandfather's favorite bird. In keeping with his family's creative tradition, Stebly both designed and built the 50 foot x 20 foot houseboat.

As the pelican is no ordinary bird, the Pelican is no ordinary vessel. Among its unique features are the Anderson prints which dominate the boat's casual decor.

Stebly has been a fishing guide on Chandeleur for the past two years and is doing what he most enjoys. Stebly said that Chandeleur is noted for its excellent fishing for trout and redfish as well as its native brown and white pelicans.

The boat, with home port on Chandeleur, will be like a floating motel for fishermen. They will be transported to the island by float plane or boat. They then stay aboard the Pelican for three days and three nights of "the greatest fishing in the South."

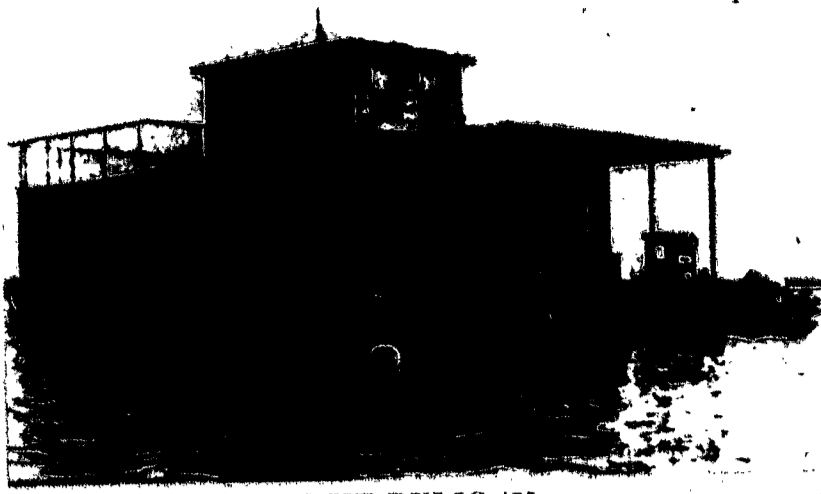

Dr. Rod Fields, a Biloxi optometrist who frequently fishes at Chandeleur, is the principal partner of Chandeleur Guide Fishing, Inc. which Stebly will operate. Fields does all of the bookings out of his Ocean Springs home. The boat will remain at the island year round and will only be returned under threat of a hurricane.

Stebly said the boat is actually a barge, designed along the same lines as the houseboats that travel the rivers. But, to give added stability and more floatation to his vessel, he employed three, rather than the usual two, pontoons.

Resembling a two-story, cedar house from a distance, Pelican sleeps eight and features an upper 30'x20' sundeck. The interior of the vessel is mahogany and cedar accented with marine blue and off-white. The boat also features all of the comforts of home including hot, running water, air conditioning, TV and ship-to-shore radio.

Stebly was only 6 when his grandfather died. "But I can feel a part of him in myself," he said. "I can feel why he wanted to live on the islands. Every day out here is a brand new adventure."

For more information, contact Fields, 9833 Point Aux Chenes Road, Ocean Springs, Mississippi 39564. Telephone (601) 875-3453.

He also had 9 rebounds. Ronnie Borman and C. Mack Reed added 10 points each.

Borman also had 7 rebounds. Center Robert Taylor, held to 6 points, contributed 12 rebounds, 5 steals and 4 assists.

In the B-team battle, Shane Sigsworth canned 11 points to pace a 39-25 Rockchaw win. Steve Hall led Long Beach with 8 points.

Coast Guard publishes voluntary guidelines for commercial fishing vessels

The U.S. Coast Guard's fishing vessel safety task force has announced publication of a book "Voluntary Standards for U.S. Uninspected Commercial Fishing Vessels (NVIC 5-96)" that will help commercial fishermen reduce accidents and injuries at sea.

Secretary of Transportation Elizabeth Hanford Dole approved the safety program aimed at promoting voluntary vessel and crew safety in the U.S. fishing industry in the summer of 1985. The task force has been working with commercial fishing boat owners in developing a safety program that pursues voluntary vessel safety standards and voluntary crew safety awareness and education.

The book of voluntary guidelines and recommended operating standards is one part of a three-part program developed by the Coast Guard in conjunction with the North Pacific Fishing Vessel Owners' Association and other elements of the fishing industry. The book is comprised of guidelines originally issued by the Coast Guard as a series of separate circulars. The circulars covered topics such as fishing boat electrical systems, radio and shipboard navigation equipment, vessel stability, crew protection and lifesaving equipment, firefighting and firefighting equipment, and hull, machinery and electrical installations.

The second part of the program, a "Vessel Safety Manual" stressing safety awareness, is less technical in nature but contains material similar to the voluntary guidelines book. It is intended for use aboard fishing vessels. The material from this manual will serve as the basis for the third part of the program, industry-sponsored safety training courses. These courses will be developed and offered by fishing industry organizations, universities and community colleges.

The book of voluntary guidelines may be obtained by writing to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402, citing stock number 850-0001-000-22-7. Checks should be made payable to the Superintendent in the amount of $11. Additional information may be obtained by calling (202) 783-3238.

The Vessel Safety Manual may be purchased by sending a check for $30 to the Vessel Safety Program, Room 207, C-3 Building, Fishermen's Terminal, Seattle, WA 98119. For further information on this publication, telephone (206) 283-0861.

Babe Ruth will always be remembered as a N.Y. Yankee even though he started and finished his career in a Boston uniform; after all, Yankee Stadium is known as the house that Ruth built. Though he played an integral role in two Boston World Champion teams, in 1916 and 1918, he was traded to New York in 1920 where his feats of raw power and versatility thrilled the nation for 15 years. It's ironic that Boston would reclaim their lost superstar in the twilight of his illustrious career.

The opening day of the season saw Ruth crush a 490-foot home run off pitcher Carl Hubbell and drive in three runs for a Boston victory. But, as the season dragged on, the Babe's batting average dropped to a career low at .180 and playing the game he once loved became a drudgery. Boston Brave Manager Bill McKenney didn't have the heart to tell him that he should retire, but it was painfully obvious to the team that he should, accentuated by the fact that his contract was one of the most lavish in all of baseball. The question was how, and more important, when?

How and when came on May 25, 1935 when the Babe went on a hitting spree that paralleled his tremendous career. Ruth clobbered three home runs including one which was the longest in Pittsburgh's Forbes Field history. This was the perfect time to suggest to Ruth that he should go out in glory and he agreed. On May 30, 1935, Ruth called a press conference in Philadelphia to announce his retirement.

And while on the subject of baseball's greats, Jay "Dizzy" Dean comes to mind. Dean was a phenomenal pitcher but always had trouble getting out Vince DiMaggio. Vince hit .500 against Dean in 1937 season and only .200 against the rest of the league. One afternoon in St. Louis, before a game, Mike Kelliher, a dedicated Boston fan, good naturedly poked fun at Dean about his difficulty getting DiMaggio out. Dean bet him dinner that he would strike out Vince three times that day.

The prediction appeared to come true as Dean struck out DiMaggio his first two times at bat. Now it's the seventh inning with the count at one ball and one strike on Vince as he popped up on behind home plate. As the catcher, Bruce Ogdowski, circled under the ball, Dean ran in yelling, "Drop it." Since Ogdowski wasn't listening, Dean gave him a football tackle and allowed the ball to fall. Needless to say, Dizzy Dean struck out DiMaggio on the next pitch. © 1986, McNaught Synd.

After you are done unwrapping Christmas gifts, take time to watch the Chicago Bulls take on the New York Knicks. It will not be difficult to distinguish the two from one another. New York will have many of its players on the bench in street clothes watching the action, while Chicago will be the guys high-fiving and smiling most of the night.

These two teams are going in opposite directions. The hapless Knicks are struggling through this young NBA season. They cannot keep their players healthy. They are talent weak at guard. And with a new coaching regime less than a month old...well, you get the picture. Chicago, on the other hand, is slowly and assuredly rising toward the area that teams like Boston, Philly and L.A. are used to occupying. Doug Collins' team has youth, talent and continuity. Of course, Michael Jordan is the catalyst of this team, but the other players are integral parts of the Bull's winning ways.

Most of us know that this game should be all Chicago, but watch anyway.

SSC defeats Long Beach in overtime 50-49

When the St. Stanislaus Rockchaws and the Long Beach Bearcats tangled Wednesday evening in Long Beach's gym, the score was tied 42-42 at the end of regulation play.

SSC guard YaSin Shabazz led the Rockchaw overtime charge with a basket and four free throws, while John Gross contributed two free throws to provide the margin of victory for St. Stanislaus.

The Rocks avenged an early season loss to the Bearcats with the victory Wednesday. The first quarter was a low scoring output, as the Rockchaws held a slim 9-6 lead, with Shabazz hitting five first-quarter points.

At halftime the Rocks maintained a 20-18 advantage as Louis Schruft, John Kellar, Josh Bowles, and Steve Montagnet all scored for SSC.

Long Beach came back to tie the score and assume a small lead in the third quarter. John Gross led the SSC attack by scoring six of his 10 points in the third quarter.

The fourth quarter was also tightly contested, as both teams added ten points to their totals. The game ended tied 42-42, bringing on an overtime period.

For St. Stanislaus, Shabazz had 19 points, followed by John Gross with 10 points and Louis Schruft with eight points.

Leading Long Beach was Ronnie Borman with 14 points and Kevin Monson with 9 points. The aggressive SSC defense held high-scoring Bearcat Robert Taylor to only four points.

In the Junior Varsity contest, Coach Jerry Spell's squad ran their record to 6-0 with a 29-25 decision over the Bearcats.

The Rocks enjoyed a comfortable 25-10 halftime edge. Seven Rockchaws scored points in the contest. Leading the way for SSC were Jerry Packrell and Shane Sigworth with nine points, followed by Freddie Wirstrom with seven points.

In varsity action over the weekend, SSC defeated East Central 51-49, and lost to tournament champion d'Iberville 61-52 in the d'Iberville Tournament held last Friday and Saturday.

higher the proof, the more calories there are. Wines and aperitifs have lower proofs and fewer calories. Try a campari and soda, or dry vermouth on the rocks with a twist. If you can avoid alcohol altogether at a party, but you don't want to look as though you're not joining in the fun, have plain tomato juice (35 calories per 6 oz. serving) with a wedge of lemon, or a club soda with a twist.

Approach cocktail fare with caution. Instead of looking for what looks tastiest, seek out the options with the fewest calories — for crackers, thin wheat, or small melba toast rounds are lowest at 9 calories each.

Be very careful with cheeses — ounce for ounce, they have as many calories as chocolate fudge! Limit yourself to just one ounce (100 calories) which is about an inch-by-inch square. Better yet, look for goat cheese, or the French version called chevres, which have only 35 calories an ounce and no butterfat.

CALORIE COUNTDOWN

BY SUSAN DUFF

HOLIDAY DO'S AND DON'TS
Here come the holidays and all that fattening fare. What's a diet to do? Just keep a few do's and don'ts in mind.

DO look for the kinds of foods at big holiday meals that fill you up and keep calories down. Have lots of fresh vegetables (no butter) and salad (no oily dressings), and turkey with skin off and no gravy. Remove fat and sugary glazes from ham, and stick to the leanest cuts of beef. If you're making the Christmas feast, follow the French tradition of serving shellfish and other seafoods, lots less fattening than meats.

DON'T eat the high-fat or high-sugar offerings at big repeats — no creamy sauces, candied yams, sweet desserts, etc.

DO eat slowly at all times. Think nibble, instead of stuffing yourself. Take small bites, chew thoroughly and don't reach for your fork until you've swallowed everything in your mouth — whether you're having a big meal or snacking on foods at a Christmas party.

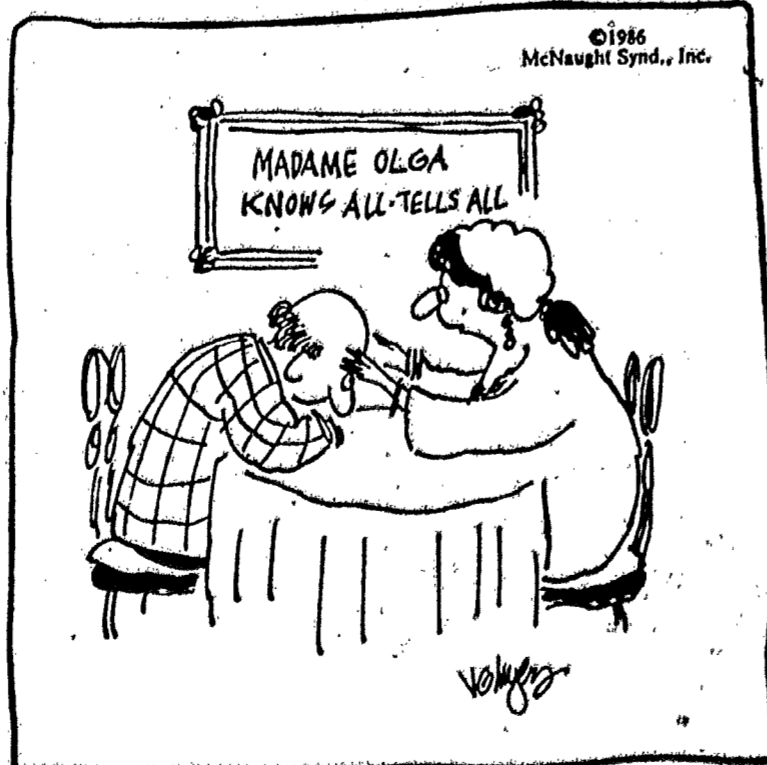

DON'T force yourself to try to stick to a specific diet program if you have a busy social life and visit family during the holidays. You'll probably be setting yourself up for failure. The best policy is to try to keep a few diet principles in mind, and be gracious and polite at other people's homes.

DO hide any holiday treats you keep on hand for company dropping in. Also, try to do holiday baking as close to the holiday as possible. If it's all sitting around for a week before Christmas, it's likely to be all gone when Christmas arrives.

DON'T nibble in the kitchen. You're apt to be cooking for company more often, or preparing sweet treats to give as gifts. Sampling the fare as you cook is a very fattening habit. Avoid it by chewing sugarless gum, drinking ice water or diet soda, or munching carrot or celery sticks. (Prepare them first, before you start to cook.)

Parties are something everyone looks forward to, and at this time of year, most dieters will have at least one or two to go to. That means being faced with lots to eat and drink. Temptation can be overwhelming at a party, and your will power may not be at its strongest amidst all the merriment. Try to keep these tips in mind so you won't sabotage your diet.

Tagged redfish released in inshore waters

Gulf Coast Research Laboratory fisheries monitoring and assessment personnel report that average water temperature in Mississippi Sound was slightly lower than that seen in recent years for November.

Average salinity dropped this month (3.6 ‰) in response to increased rainfall in the local area.

The appearance of young-of-the-year mullet marked the beginning of recruitment of this species into Mississippi waters. Inshore samples continued to be dominated by small croaker, crabs, and juvenile shrimp. Postlarval spot were taken on Belle Fontaine Beach in Ocean Springs the last part of the month.

of Atlantic bumpers was taken outside Dog Keys Pass.

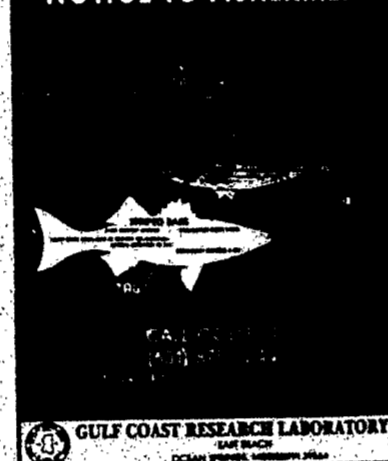

Intensive tagging of juvenile redfish in Davis-Simmons Bayou, Ocean Springs, was undertaken the third week of November. Over 150 fish were tagged with a red streamer tag placed in the gut cavity on the left side of the fish.

Laboratory in Ocean Springs at (601) 878-4233.

Posters indicating that tagged redfish have been released in local waters have been placed at strategic locations along the coast.

Tagged fish will be released in the Pearl River, St. Louis Bay, Biloxi Bay, and Pascagoula River estuaries over the next four weeks.

These fish represented the first appearance of the species in Mississippi inshore waters. Numbers are expected to increase over the next few weeks.

Trawl hauls around the barrier island passes yielded croaker, squid, butterfly, white trout, and crabs. An unusually large sample (92 lbs.)

The fish averaged 14-16 inches total length. Ratio of tagged to untagged fish in samples scheduled to be taken the third week of December will be used to estimate population abundance in that bayou system. Anyone catching a redfish that has been tagged is urged to report the catch to the Gulf Coast Research

SANDBEACH MASTER PLAN

The Hancock and Harrison County Sand Beach Master Plans are finished. Final drafts were presented to the County Executive and Technical Advisory Committees in November.

Both plans were accepted unanimously and recommendations were made to begin plan implementation.

The final plan divides the 32 miles of beach into planning units. For each unit, a management category and specific management policies have been formulated.

Plan implementation now becomes the Boards of Supervisors' responsibility. It is anticipated that each board will form a Sand Beach Authority to oversee beach issues, including the provision of facilities and erosion control structure recommended in the Beach Plan.

NOTICE TO FISHERMEN

PLEASE REPORT ALL TAGGED FISH CAUGHT

We would like to thank all those who participated in the beach planning process. Never, to our knowledge, have so many political entities cooperated so fully among themselves, and with participating citizen groups, to produce such a well developed, implementable planning document.

Fall Turnover
Although some Southerners believe that a fall "turnover" of a lake is only something that happens up North, all thermoclined lakes do "turn over." It just doesn't happen all at once and it may be so gradual it's unnoticed.

What fall turnover is all about is a shut-off period for fish activity on a particular lake. Cold surface water "settles" downward while deep warmer waters rise. Basically, this phenomenon reoxygenates the water. "This turnover homogenizes lakes that have thermoclined in summer," states Bass: A Handbook of Strategies. And we all know what homogenize means, like in milk!

"In a shallow water lake fall turnover can cause problems," state Guido Hibdon, Johnson Pro Staff member based in Missouri. "It's happening right now (mid-September) in the upper end of the lake in the shallows. And when that happens, you have a week of bad fishing unless you're on the lower end of the lake where the water is deeper (30-40 feet) and you're fishing for deeper bass."

Hibdon points out one tactic that may be applicable to reservoirs and impoundments with feeding rivers. "I was just with some people and we were talking about fishing ahead of the turnover," Hibdon noted while emphasizing that the turnover slowly spreads through the body of water. "When it hits a dam or the end of a lake, which is far as it can go, you can go back and start over up river where it's already straightened itself out where you can catch bass again."

According to Hibdon, you have to fish a given body of water a lot to be able to detect the tell-tale signs of the turnover. It's a slow process but you can detect it by the foamy substance or other matter that turns loose from the bottom. This can be seen by a knowledgeable eye and detected with a sensitive nose.

It should also be stressed that not all lakes with a thermocline turnover at the same exact time. Knowledge of several lakes in your area can mean the difference between an uninterrupted week of fishing and four or five days of frustration.

tional Marine Fisheries Service personnel have completed the 1986 phase of a landmark red drum mark/recapture effort. In a two-month period some 6,000 red drum were tagged in waters ranging from Florida to Louisiana. Fishermen catching any tagged red drum are asked to contact the Bureau of Marine Resources (601-864-4602).

The 1986-87 Mississippi oystering season got underway Monday, Nov. 10 when the St. Joseph's Point, St. Stanislaus and Waveland Reefs opened. A 15-bush limit/day was imposed for commercial boats.

A proposed sportfishing minimum size limit of 14 inches for spotted seatrout and red drum became effective Dec. 1.

A minimum size limit of 14 inches has long been in effect for commercial fishing. These new minimum size limits should help to ensure the integrity of the stocks of these important sports and commercial species.

THE SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, DECEMBER 18, 1986
Commercial fishermen are reminded that after Nov. 15, they will once again be permitted to catch and land red drum taken from state waters using gill or trammel nets and hook and line methods.

In federal waters, on the other hand, a ban on the taking of red drum by both sports and commercial fishermen will remain in effect.

Fall's arrival has brought with it a resurgence of sportfishing action all along the Mississippi Gulf Coast. Anglers are reporting excellent catches of spotted seatrout, red drum, flounder, and white trout at most front beach locations.

Backwater fishermen enjoy an added bonus in the form of striped bass; and the average size of stripers taken from our coastal waters continues to increase. Fishermen lucky enough to catch one of these gamesters are asked to contact Larry Nicholson of the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory at 601-875-2244.

As a result of recent action taken by the Commission on Wildlife Conservation, mullet fishermen in Pascagoula Bay will be able to conduct their operations in all waters south of the L & N Railroad Bridges.

Cheese-Making at Mississippi State

When Mississippi State College Professor F.H. Herzer nearly half a century ago determined to manufacture a high quality cheese in the school's dairy science department that would rank alongside football in drawing attention to the state's agricultural college, his idea might have struck some as being ahead of its time.

But today—the Bulldog Blitz notwithstanding—alumni, students and faculty, and cheese lovers at large are queuing up in the department's cheese sales office to be a part of the action just as surely as they and others assemble in line at the athletic department of Scott Field to seek football tickets as near the 50 yard line as possible.

The late professor's idea has mellowed in time as surely as have the thousands of three-pound balls of Edam Cheese slowly curing while Mississippians impatiently wait for the process to run full cycle.

When the cheese-making program began in 1938 Prof. Herzer secured 10 teakwood cheese hoops or molds from Holland and began producing a few hundred Edams per year. But today after this only producer of Edam Cheese in the South has steadily imported more Dutch hoops, production at the Starkville facility has grown to 600 Edam balls per day, or 60,000 annually with demand keeping pace with supply.

Other cheeses manufactured by the department include Cheddar, named for the village of Cheddar, England, where it was first made—just as the Edam is named for Edam, Holland, where that form was developed—and Jalapeno Pepper cheese.

Prof. Herzer wanted to develop cheese-making at the college that would enhance the college's reputation in dairy research and education, and over the years he and his successors have seen the latter progress as students have learned and practiced—the cheese-making science at a high level of achievement, and some have become actively involved in modern and futuristic research projects at the facility.

The third cheese-making product at the university today, Jalapeno Pepper Cheese, is for those with a taste for the spicy 'or hot. This cheese is made by mixing and heating batches of natural cheese with emulsifying agents and ground peppers. The total cheese-making operation requires 20,000 pounds of milk daily with about half coming from the university dairy herd.

The manufacturing of Edam cheese requires extensive hand labor. Greatly simplified, the process involves about six hours of time in making it into the three pound ball form. Then it goes into a brine solution for two days for salt penetration. It dries in a cooler one day, and receives its red wax outer skin and a heat shrunk plastic bag on yet another day. Then it is placed in cool storage warehouse for a minimum of four months for aging or curing.

As a matter of principle, the MSU cheese operation is not competitive in the private sector since no other cheese-making facilities in the state sell cheese in the retail market. Rather, commercial plants in the state sell their production wholesale to large firms that subsequently package and retail it under their name brands, and research at MSU helps Mississippi-based wholesale cheese manufacturers do a better job since the research is on-going and is passed on to those that can benefit from it.

Quality control is critical at the MSU facility with each batch required to meet or exceed quality standards before it is sold. The use of Grade A milk only exceeds industry standards.

Prof. Herzer's dream for the cheese-making facility was passed into the hands of Prof. E.W. Custer who succeeded Herzer 37 years ago and retired only last year. Prof. Custer shared the vision and expanded on it, and was the man whose personal efforts made it materialize so that this week even, Santa's sleigh can be seen backed up among the heavy traffic rumbling in and out of the dairy science parking lot as the countdown for Christmas continues.

THIS WEEK'S HOROSCOPE

BY SALOME

Weekly Tip: Don't depend on resolutions; look for real solutions instead.

Aries (Mar. 21-Apr. 19) A new aspect enters the picture as the new year begins. Business success builds as you make needed adjustments in answer to this.

Taurus (Apr. 20-May 20) A shift in working procedures eases pressures. Don't put off making the change too long. The sooner the better for everyone.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) What seems to be a series of disappointing turns of event may simply be delaying tactics on the part of those who aren't sure what you want.

Cancer (June 21-July 20) Temper your expectations before they get out of hand. Demanding that those who made promises keep them immediately could backfire.

Leo (Jul. 21-Aug. 22) Calls to friends you haven't seen during the holidays is a good way for you big Cats to chase the post gala blahs.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Time to tote up the past year's efforts and look forward to the new year's challenges. Personal situations require more attention than you expected.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) New opportunities make new demands on your energies. Fortunately, you won't have to feel as if you're drowning under pressure.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Kin can cause some concern regardless of what you try to do for them. Continue to be supportive, but prepared to have to make adjustments.

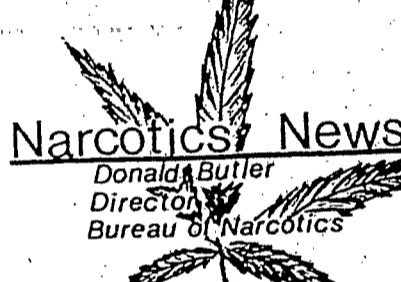

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) That old job problem seems to be recurring. This time, handle things without involving as many people. Go directly to the persons who can help.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Make this a healthy new year. A thorough medical checkup is a good way to start the year. Minor problems can be treated before they become serious.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Personal relationships could be in for a rocky ride. Smooth things over as much as you can before they get too rough to handle.

Pisces (Feb. 19-Mar. 20) Count your blessings and then go ahead and count on those good friends who won't desert you in time of need.

Q: I have a friend who is heavily involved in drugs. How can I help? Where can he go for help? (S.R. Pearl, MS)

A: First of all let me say, that you are helping your friend by just getting involved.

I suggest that you talk with a counselor of an organization that provides drug and/or alcohol recovery programs. These counselors are trained in the area of rehabilitation and will be able to give you answers on how you can help your friend.

There are numerous organizations available throughout Mississippi that provide this type of service.

I suggest checking the phonebook under drug abuse and addiction treatment and it should provide a list of centers available in your area.

These centers provide the skilled counselors and treatment needed for the chemical dependant.

Narcotics Anonymous in your area will be of invaluable assistance, free of charge.

Q: Is "crack" as bad as the media claims it to be? (C.K. Brandon, MS)

A: The answer to your question is yes. Several of our earlier columns addressed "crack" and we will do so in this column by providing some facts about it.

CRACK

1. It is smoked and absorbed rapidly thru the lungs reaching the brain within seconds.
2. It is inexpensive sells as cheaply as $5 to $10.
3. It is the number one drug problem in major cities throughout the United States.
4. It is highly addictive.
5. The making of "crack" is so easy and can be performed in the kitchen of anyone.
6. "Crack" sells itself - dealers don't have to push it. It's a quick-sale product.
7. "Crack" has become a national epidemic.

If you would like to ask a question, address it to: Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics, P.O. Box 6462, Jackson, MS 39212.

David Matheson, Scott Dennis, Amy Hoke, Trey Stafford, and Steele Scott show their winning ways in the Fourth Grade Tug A War.

Field Day for students from the Coast Episcopal Elementary Schools in Bay St. Louis and Biloxi was featured on a recent Saturday morning at Coast Episcopal High School's Pass Christian campus.

Each class designed and printed a class emblem on a T-shirt.

After opening ceremonies for the day, were held on the tennis court, Gaynell Ambrose, physical education instructor, conducted warm-up exercises for all the students.

Many parents ran the events in which each class competed and other parents followed along with their child's class to cheer. Team events were designed so that every child who participated was a winner.

As each event was run, more children proudly wore their winning ribbons.

"Space does not allow listing the winners from Team Events, but let it be known that every child was a winner," Ambrose stated.

All these questions are killing me!

By Brenda Frechou
Special to the Sea Coast Echo

Some days my kids ask me so many questions that I feel like having a stiff drink by ten in the morning.

It wouldn't be bad if they asked one questions and that was it. No. These children just keep asking questions and making me answer then until I'm so confused that I don't know who I am or where I am.

For instance, here are a set of four-year-old questions:

"Mommy, who do you watch the news in the morning? Why do I have to wait ten minutes to watch the cartoons? Why do I have to wait for breakfast? Why can't I eat now? Why can't I stand on the chair? Why do I have to eat my food?"

Followed by "How come I can't throw my cereal at the dog? Why are you holding your head? Why do I have to shut up?"

When you consider that this child awakens at six in the morning, you can understand why I'm so confused.

The six-year old's questions get more aggravating:

"Mama, who does he have to wake up when I do? Can't you make him go back to bed? Do I have to brush my teeth? Why do I have to make my bed? Nobody else in my class makes their bed. Is that fair? Why does the school bus come so early? Can't you drive us to school? Why can't you make breakfast right now? Don't you care if I'm hungry? What's wrong with my clothes? Why do I have to eat some more? I had four bites. Why do you have to say shut up? You told me not to say that because it's not nice."

When the 11-year-old starts I feel like ripping my hair out:

"Mom, can't you keep the boys out of my room? Why can't he use the other bathroom? Well, why do they always have to go at the same time? Where's the breakfast? What's wrong with these clothes, huh? Why do you want me to dress like a baby? Why can't you let me dress the way I want? Why do I have to read the school rule book? Why do they have a dress code? That's stupid! Why do I have to eat with them? They make me sick! Gee mom, why are you so cranky this morning?"

Now, combine all three sets of questions, squeeze them into a 46 minute time span and you'll know why I'm so confused.

The two oldest children naturally have to ask this one last question, before leaving for the bus:

"Mom, why do you always have to kiss us before we leave?"

I have never had the heart to tell them that it's either kiss them or kick them. Frankly, I'd rather hug and a kiss when I'm aggravated.

Bay Senior High National Honor Society inducts

The Bay Senior High National Honor Society induction ceremony was held on Thursday, Dec. 4 in the school's library.

Stacen Ladner, president, presented the welcoming address and introduced the following officers: Melissa Duncan, vice president; Robinette Lipscomb, secretary; and Jacqueline Wilson, treasurer.

The officers spoke on the four virtues—service, character, scholarship, and leadership—upon which the National Honor Society is based. Guest speaker for the occasion was Dr. Roger Oge, superintendent of schools.

The National Honor Society members' unlimited potential for a successful future was the central theme of Dr. Oge's talk.

Ms. Ladner inducted the following new members: John Necaise, Sam Oliver, and Britt Woods, seniors; Andrew Barrett, Kristy Clark, Vivian Crosby, Melissa Harvill, Kim Krankey, Chad LaFontaine, Hope Necaise, Alana Noonan, and Elisa Spotorno, juniors.

Other members of the society are Nathan Jez, Melissa Moran, and Sherrie Wharton, seniors.

Bay band director elected at convention

Bay Junior-Senior High Band Director Lana Jones attended the 50th annual Mississippi Band Masters State Clinic Dec. 11-13 in Biloxi along with public school junior and senior high school band directors from around the state.

Two top students chosen from each high school and one from each junior high band compose three 125-piece concert bands which perform at the conclusion of the convention under the direction of nationally known guest clinicians.

The Bay High Band was represented by Craig Adam on trombone and Carl Major, percussion.

While at the convention, annually held at the Biloxi Hilton, Miss Jones was instrumental in the founding of a charter Mississippi Chapter of the Women Band Directors National Association and was elected the organization's first vice president.

In addition, Miss Jones was tapped by Phi Beta Mu, an international band directors' fraternity.

She is one of a very small number of women band directors who have been selected for membership in this elite, predominantly male organization since its founding in Mississippi in the early 1900's.

Miss Jones also served as hostess for one of the visiting out-of-state guest clinicians.
